TINLEY FARMERS ASK GOV. FOR ADEQUATE REPAIR PARTS

Farmers around Tinley Park are signing the following petition addressed to Henry A. Wallace, chairman Supply, Priorities and Allocation Board in Washington: We, the undersigned farmers realize that the job of the American farmer is to produce more food and that the production of food is the foundation of our national Victory campaign.

For strength and moral we need more of some food stuffs in America, also for the very care of their defense, the stamina and the spirit of their people, England needs great stocks of the same foods. It is up to us in 1942 to furnish England a food supply sufficient to satisfy 10 million people, perhaps more. Only the adequate repair parts for our present used machines and a sufficient amount of new machines will we be able to meet the expected increased food production.

Using 1940 as a basis the government has estimated that the production of farm equipment in 1942 should be 80 percent of the total used in 1940. We, as American farmers are of the opinion that this quantity will be very short of what we need to produce the foods that are expected of us.

We are of the opinion that the percentage should be increased and farm equipment produced in such quantities that will furnish us with our every need. If we are to produce food for the world we must have modern machinery to do the work and to replace the farm help that has been called to service and who are now serving our nation in our naval, military and air forces.

'Flight Strips' Are New Aid For Aviators

WASHINGTON.—If it isn't an enemy ship don't be frightened some day soon if as you drive your car down the highway you see a plane swoop out of the sky toward the road. For chances are pretty good that the aircraft will be making for a "flight strip" or auxiliary landing area that has been built near the highway.

Army air force officials have announced that they are co-operating in building of these landing areas under terms of a highway act recently signed by the President. The flight strips are to be constructed for the use of the service type of aircraft adjacent to public roads.

Although highways themselves have been used for airplane landings in cases of emergency, it is obvious that this use of highways by aircraft is impracticable except in cases of the most extreme emergency because of the danger of accidents and the blocking of traffic.

Construction of flight strips in most instances, will involve little more than widening the highway rights-of-way or the use of roadside development areas and establishment of a definite line of demarcation between highway and flight strip.

Runway Must Be Straight.

The runway on a flight strip area may be 3,000 to 8,000 feet in length, depending upon elevation of the ground above sea level and the type of aircraft for which it is intended. Since this runway must be straight, the "flight strip" may not parallel the highway throughout its entire length, especially in rolling or mountainous country, where few roads have long straight stretches, but where the rights-of-way or adjacent roadside development areas can be widened to provide flight strips. The flight strip areas probably will have a minimum cleared width of 300 feet, with an actual runway width of not less than 150 feet.

The type of construction to be undertaken at each flight strip may vary with the geographical location and altitude of the area. Locations will be sought with a view to creation of landing facilities for "organization in depth" in order to conserve fuel and extend the range of aircraft. Effort will be made to develop areas where treatment of the soil may not require more than the growing of a heavy grass turf to make it suitable for the operation of all except the largest and heaviest of aircraft.

No drastic changes are necessary in highway improvement planning, except, that in some cases, it is advocated that, highways be placed on one side of wide rights-of-way instead of in the center, thereby allowing the remaining parts of the rights-of-way to be available for flight strips.

Home Nursing Training Program Is Geared for War Emergency

(This article was prepared by the American Red Cross to aid in explaining to the women of the United States the efforts of the organization in its current home nursing training courses and war fund drive.)

By VIOLET K. LIBBY

NEW YORK.—Women of America! If someone in your family falls sick or is injured, and you can't get a trained nurse to help—do you know how to carry on? Can you take a temperature, give bedside care, carry out the doctor's orders?

Someone's life may depend on your knowledge of home nursing, the American Red Cross warns. Due to the number of nurses called to active duty with the army and navy the shortage of professional nurses grows daily more serious.

Through Red Cross Home Nursing classes hundreds of wives, mothers and girls are learning to prepare for home emergencies. For 30 years, through its chapters and branches, the Red Cross has been teaching the women and girls of America to take care of the sick in their own homes.

Classes Being Formed.

Now that we are at war, new Red Cross Home Nursing classes are being formed all over the country. Part of the $50,000,000 war fund for which the Red Cross is appealing will be used to finance these urgently needed courses, through which the Red Cross expects to teach at least 500,000 women the principles of home nursing as a vital measure of home defense.

Women of all ages may enroll in these Home Nursing classes. They are organized by local Red Cross chapters and branches in cities, towns, and rural communities, and may be held, not only in Red Cross chapters and branch headquarters, but in public schools, churches and similar places where there are suitable facilities for teaching. Registered Red Cross nurse-instructors give the classes, which cover 24 hours' instruction in simple home nursing.

In these Home Nursing classes, women learn through demonstration and actual practice how to follow the doctor's orders intelligently and what to do in case of emergency. They learn how to keep themselves and their families fit and well as part of their contribution to national defense. Mothers learn how to take care of their babies properly, what to do in case of illness, and how to prevent the spread of communicable diseases. Students learn just how to take care of patients in bed, how to make them comfortable, and how to feed them. They are also shown the best way to look after convalescents and old people.

All Can Help.

There are classes for all—mothers, wives, young women, high school girls—and there are even classes for men and boys. Any person or group wishing to join such a Home Nursing class should get in touch with the local Red Cross chapter or branch.

On completing the course satisfactorily, students receive a "Red Cross Home Nursing Certificate," and are ready to take care of the sick at home and to volunteer their services in local wartime or disaster emergencies, if necessary.

Last year 2,500 nurses, many volunteering their time, taught 80,000 women and girls. Today, the Red Cross expects to enroll 15,000 registered Red Cross nurse-instructors to teach these courses. Any nurse who is qualified and able to serve as an instructor for these Home Nursing classes should get in touch with her local Red Cross chapter or branch at once.

The Red Cross is appealing for a $50,000,000 war fund, to expand its Home Nursing and all other services to meet war time needs.

Hawaiian Islanders Defend Large Area

HONOLULU.—Hawaiian islanders in their onetime tourist paradise—transformed into an active war outpost with the attack on Pearl Harbor and bombardment of Maui island—have a "bits and pieces" area of nearly 6,500 square miles to defend.

The Hawaiian group, lying diagonally across the central stretches of the North Pacific, comprises eight main islands and a number of islets. Maui, near the easternmost end of the archipelago, is more than 2,000 miles from the United States mainland. On the western side, the outlying atoll of Kure is roughly 2,300 miles from Japan, according to the National Geographic society.

According to 1940 figures, the Hawaiian islands have a population of about 423,000, of whom more than a third are Japanese. Of the rest, the chief classifications include about 103,000 whites, some 65,000 native and part-Hawaiians, 50,000 Filipinos, and 35,000 Chinese and Koreans. With some four-fifths of the people born in Hawaii, a large proportion of the Oriental group are United States citizens.

The island of Oahu, containing Honolulu and the Pearl Harbor naval base, has the heaviest population density.

Makes Friends Fast And Loses 'Em Faster

BALTIMORE.—A friendly pup made two young friends, then lost them just as easily. Following two 17-year-old boys on their way to hunt, he jumped playfully at one of the lads causing the boy's gun to discharge. The shot sent the other youth to a hospital with a bullet wound in the shoulder. The pup left in a hurry.

Science Aids in Solving Crimes

Clears Up Cases That Defy Ordinary Methods.

WASHINGTON.—The Federal Bureau of Investigation's technical laboratory, organized by Director J. Edgar Hoover in 1932, has been responsible for the convictions of many criminals whose apprehension probably would not have been possible by ordinary crime-detection methods.

Staffed by more than 50 highly trained specialists and scientists, the laboratory handles evidence submitted by the FBI's 55 field divisions as well as by other law enforcement agencies. The examinations, in the latter case, are performed free of charge.

Typical of the results obtained by the laboratory's research work is the conviction of a murderer by toxicological examination of his wife's body after it had been interred for several months.

"The deceased was at first believed to have been the victim of natural ailments and buried without inquiry being made," officials said. "Subsequent events, however, among them the remarriage of her husband within a month's time, led to suspicion of foul play."

"Qualitative chemical analysis of several organs showed indications of the presence of arsenic, and quantitative tests revealed more than a lethal dose of poison."

A rather unusual examination in the laboratory occurred recently when local authorities submitted pieces of thorns that were taken from the trousers of a suspect.

"The crime had been committed near a hedge and it was apparent that the culprit had broken down a part of it," they said. "The fragments of thorns were examined and found to be similar in structure to the specimens of hedge which were submitted."

Reveals Death Battle

Between Two Big Bucks

DEERFIELD, S. D.—The death battle of two buck deer in a mountain wilderness near here was revealed when hunters found the victorious warrior alive, locked with the old master he defeated in a fight for his doe.

Harry Oberg, Deerfield prospector, came on the bucks as he climbed Crooks Tower, a 7,100-foot mountain, in search of elk. He called his companions, Fred and Ivan Reynolds, who trailed 14 miles through the snow to a ranger station telephone while Oberg waited 6½ hours for the game warden to come with saws and an axe to release the winner.

Warden Dave Harris read the story in tracks in the snow and bits of fur. The bucks had fought since midnight, thrashing about in the forest in a contest for the mate which stood to one side and leaped away when her courtiers locked their massive antlers.

Down the mountain side the bucks sparred, then their antlers locked. The younger hurled an old 163-pound monarch over his back, slammed him against an aspen and a pine stump and broke his back.

Harris sawed a half hour to free the victor. Oberg's party, refusing another group of hunters a chance at the captive buck, watched him leap through the forest to freedom.

Bandit Proves That He Ain't Been Caught, Yet

NEW YORK.—A young man with a western drawl and a six-shooter is making a specialty of robbing finance companies in Manhattan.

Posing as a hotel clerk, he asked for a loan at the Personal Finance company, and remarked to the manager, "you fellows have been hard hit" in referring to three other hold-ups.

"I don't know whether they have caught the fellow or not," replied Manager Frank Spezzano.

"They ain't caught him," the applicant said, and brandishing his pistol, scooped $850 into a bag and fled.

Over Zealous Informer Trapped by His Own Tip

SALT LAKE CITY.—Police had before them the case of the over-zealous informer.

They were called to a local lunchroom by the informer, who told them "two suspicious-looking men are here and they look like they have guns."

Upon arriving at the lunchroom, officers found the "suspicious characters" were two members of the police vice squad eating an off-duty snack.

The informer was taken to the city jail on a charge of "suspicion of being a bit drunk."

Russia's Attitude Toward Japan Has Strong Influence on War's Trend . . . Navy Long Expected to Fight Japs.

(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

WASHINGTON.—If there were a unified high command over the forces of the democracy right now there is little doubt what would be the first step. Russian bombers would be rushed to attack Japan, where they would seek out her oil stores—all above ground since the 1923 earthquake—her munition plants, her harbors and, later on, her warships, transports, supply ships and tankers.

This would be done because Russia has enough air power in eastern Siberia, in the opinion of military experts here, to crush Japan. This would stop the Nipponese in their tracks not only in Malaya, the Philippines and the Netherlands Indies, but also in China.

The Russians still have that great air force in the Far East for the simple reason that, badly as they have needed it, especially in the early stages of the German invasion of European Russia, the Soviet did not trust Japan. They feared an attack in the back despite their fairly recent treaty of amity with the little brown brothers, for the little brown brothers have no more regard for the sanctity of treaties than Adolf Hitler has.

No one, of course, knew just where Japan was going to strike. For Japan is known, and has been known for years, to aspire to domination of Asia, all the way to Suez, and of all the Pacific islands, including Australia. In fact the Japanese have rather flaunted their aspirations. They have not concealed their desire to take over control of territory which now is vested in the Soviet, China, Britain, France, the United States, Holland, and various independent or partially independent states.

Moreover, despite Japan's all-out attack on the British and the United States forces and holdings in the Far East, she did not withdraw her large armies from the Siberian border. On the contrary she kept them poised there, ready for an instant blow the moment Russia was so hard pressed in the West that she would be compelled to weaken her forces in the Far East.

—Buy Defense Bonds—

Russia and Britain Play Same Game

Russia, however, played the game which the British played in September, 1940, and thereby probably prevented a complete German victory at that time. Britain took it in bombing, but never risked ALL of her air force at one time. So Goering never achieved the complete knockout of the British air force, which would have made the island of Britain another Flanders.

Russia similarly took the pounding in the West, which seemed to the world to be threatening Leningrad, Moscow and Sevastopol, but never risked eastern Siberia!

When the hour arrived for the Japanese attack, the Japs thought Hitler had won complete victory in European Russia. They had been told that Moscow would fall in a few days. That is what the rest of the world expected up to a short time before the news of the Jap attack on Pearl Harbor, the Philippines, and Hong Kong. It is what everyone, including the Japanese, thought when the attacking forces left Japan.

But the attack did not include Siberia! Why? Because the Japanese knew through their own intelligence service that Russians had NOT weakened their forces in eastern Siberia. They knew an attack on Siberia would mean an air attack by the Russians on Japan. And they knew they could not take it. Stalin knows it too. He couldn't help but know it. So it will be interesting to watch developments.

Navy Long Expected War With Japs

Ever since 1904, or since the Russo-Japanese war, most of our own naval officers, and officers of the British navy as well, have figured that sooner or later the United States and Japan would have a war. Since the Washington arms conference, in the winter of 1921-1922, our own and the British naval officers have been unanimous in their conviction that sooner or later this war between Nippon and Uncle Sam would come.

The writer was at Pearl Harbor in 1925, and was attacked, along with correspondents of the New York Times and the Chicago Tribune, for not informing the American public about the spying which the Japanese had done on our naval maneuvers, just then completed. The attack was made by Admiral Coontz, referee in the war game, in the presence of some 20 junior officers!

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Never fill muffin pans more than two-thirds full, allowing space for the batter to rise during baking.

A little chili sauce and catsup added to mayonnaise makes a very satisfactory sauce to serve with baked or broiled fish. It can be prepared in a short time.

Rugs in constant use should be cleaned frequently and thoroughly. Any dust or dirt left in rugs for a long time is likely to cut the fibers, making holes.

Brooms and all sweeping brushes should be hung up when not in use. If left standing on the bristles these become bent and will not do their work properly.

Farmers Prepare for Their Biggest Year

By L. G. ELLIOTT
President, LaSalle Extension University

As their contribution to the war effort to achieve victory, the farmers of the United States are planning to produce, during this year, the largest amounts of farm products that have ever been raised. The new production goals call for more intensive efforts in every line, and farmers are using the slack winter months to get ready for turning out this greater output of food that is needed.

Increases reaching more than 10 per cent are planned for most of the major farm products, including corn, pork, beef, eggs, and chickens. Farmers specializing in these lines have already boosted their production and raised their income. They will do even more during this year in order to meet the larger demand from consumers with higher incomes, from the government to supply the armed forces, and from nations abroad that are fighting with us.

Dairy farmers are expected to lead all types of farmers in income gains, consumer use of milk is increasing and augmented exports of condensed milk and cheese to Great Britain will further improve their income. The national production schedule calls for a 7 per cent increase in milk production in 1942. Whether this will be reached is problematical. Dairy herds number only about 3 per cent more cows, and the other 4 per cent desired will have to come from increased output per cow.

Soybeans assume even more importance as the oil derived from them becomes more vital in our national production program. Acreage is expected to be larger in 1942, and higher prices are in prospect.

Less wheat and cotton will be raised because supplies of these crops are already large and the export markets for them have either been entirely cut off or greatly reduced. Surpluses now amount to almost two years' normal requirements. Instead of raising more to add to the surplus, farmers will devote most of their energies to turning out the food and feed crops for which the new need is much more urgent.

Farms in every part of the country are in good condition to meet the increased demands that will be put upon them this year. Except for the drought areas in the East and parts of the Southeast, and the excessive rainfall in the Central area, moisture has been normal and will give the crops a good start this spring.

Farm Labor Shortage.

The shortage of farm labor and increased wages for hired hands will add somewhat to costs, and is already handicapping farmers in many parts of the country. This shortage will be one of the major problems during this year, but it is now being tackled by federal, state and local co-operation. It will be a hardship for many farmers, but it can be overcome to a large extent by careful planning of work and improved methods of farm management.

FARMERS GIVEN QUICK RELIEF FROM OPPRESSIVE OCCUPATIONAL TAX LAW

Quick relief from an oppressive legal construction of the Retailers Occupational Tax law was given the farmers of Illinois when the matter was brought to the attention of Gov. Dwight H. Green, it was declared today by Senator Simon E. Lantz when he reported a ruling by the Dept. of Finance which would exclude livestock breeders and feed men from paying the 2 per cent tax.

In ordering a stricter enforcement of the R.O.T. measure and closing all loop holes, the Dept. of Finance ruling brought the livestock and feed industry under the provisions of the act, originally passed by the Horner administration in 1933. Lantz, former president of the Aberdeen Angus Breeders Association of America, headed a delegation of farmers and breeders which presented a personal protest to the Governor.

Gov. Green concurred in the farmers' views and ordered an investigation. After a conference with Att. General Geo. F. Barrett, the ruling was shown to be in fact placing a tax upon a tax since most breeding stock is used over and over in the natural operations of the livestock industry. With the injustice revealed and the legal aspects cleared, the Dept. of Finance has restored the interpretation in effect during previous administrations.

NO MORE 2-PANTS SUITS SHORTAGE OF WOOL WILL CAUSE CHANGE IN STYLES

Clothes are going to change. They are going to look different, and they are going to be different too. That's because we are cut off from sources of wool in Australia and New Zealand, and because so much wool is needed for military uniforms. There's from 40 to 50 per cent less wool available for civilian use this year and it's going to mean that overcoats made probably will be made out of a mixture of virgin wool and re-used wool, and that coats will be shorter and pants trousers skimpier, and an end, for the duration of the "two pants suit."

GOVERNMENT USES ALCOHOL IN MAKING EXPLOSIVES

The vital need for more and more alcohol to make explosives is going to change the formula of lots of things on your drugstore shelves. Not things you need when you're ill, but things like toothpaste, and perfume and a great many other cosmetics. The Office of Production Management has ruled that no more alcohol may be used in the manufacture of such products after April 1.

SUGAR PRICE WILL RISE WHEN PRESENT STOCK IS USED UP

To date, despite tremendous lend-lease shipments to Britain, there hasn't been any real shortage in any foodstuff. Nearest approach to a shortage is in sugar, because much sugar is made from cane, and sugar cane molasses has been largely used to make alcohol. The OPM has ordered distillers equipped to make alcohol from corn or grain to use these materials exclusively.

At the same time the Office of Price Administration ordered an upward adjustment in the price ceiling above refined and other "direct consumption" sugars, a maximum price advance of 20 cents a 100 pounds. This isn't expected to have any immediate effect on retail prices, because retailers now are selling sugar acquired at lower prices. When stocks are exhausted, however, retailers will have to pay higher prices to replenish their stock.

SOUTH HOLLAND BANK PAYS $10,879.96 DIVIDEND

Arthur C. Leuder, State Auditor of Public Accounts, announced today that he has authorized the South Holland Trust and Savings Bank, South Holland, Ill., to pay a 10 per cent dividend amounting to $10,879.96 on waived deposits.

Following the banking moratorium of March 1933, the depositors of this bank waived 40 per cent of their deposits, thus enabling the bank to resume business. The total waived amounted to $103,800.00. This is the fourth payment to the depositors on the amount waived.

"NAVY TRADE TRAINING GAVE ME MY START" SAYS PRESIDENT, SPERRY CORPORATION

THOMAS A. MORGAN (pictured in insert), president of the Sperry Corporation, world's largest manufacturer of aeronautical and marine instruments, received his early technical training in the U. S. Navy, in which he enlisted as a young man. "This has proved of great value to me in later years," said ex-sailor Morgan. Pictured above are new Navy recruits receiving electrical training at one of the modern equipped Navy Trade Schools. The Navy offers training to young men in nearly 50 different trades and vocations.

Opportunities for advancement, to learn skilled trades, for travel and adventure are identical whether a man enlists in the regular Navy or the Naval Reserve—and his pay, food, clothing, medical and dental care are the same.

In spite of the intense cold last Thursday evening, there was a good attendance at the January meeting of the Orland Park PTA. A noteworthy feature was that the attendance of the teacher members was 100 percent.

The program as originally scheduled called for the showing of several educational films and a talk on visual education by Mr. Edw. Gee, but at the last moment, Mr. Gee could not fulfill this engagement and a series of letters written by Mrs. Guthrie, YWCA worker, was read by Mrs. Town. These letters detailed the experiences of Mrs. Guthrie in India, China, Canal Zone and Hawaii and gave a word picture of her impressions of conditions and the reaction of those people to world conditions. Following the meeting refreshments were served by a committee of Mrs. Walter Kramer, chairman, Mesdames Lloyd Cowan, Harriet Gee, and Ike Cleveland.

The February meeting will be dedicated to the Founders of the National Congress of Parent Teacher and an interesting program is planned.

Petitions for the candidacy of Bernice T. Van der Vries for re-nomination as Representative of the Seventh Senatorial district in the General Assembly of Illinois in the April Primary election are being circulated this week.

Friends of Mrs. Van der Vries, who is serving her fourth term in the Assembly, point to her increasing importance and effectiveness in the law making body of the state. As chairman she assumed the responsibility in the House for the passage of the new Municipal Code which became effective on January 1. Senate Bill 10, which contained the Municipal Code, was the longest Bill ever introduced into the Assembly.

Mrs. Van der Vries is chairman of the Illinois Commission of Inter Governmental Cooperation, an agency which cooperates with similar commissions in 43 other states in the passage of uniform laws and in the elimination of trade barriers between the states. As chairman of the commission Mrs. Van der Vries holds a membership on the Illinois State Council of Defense.

DEEP WATER ISLAND

by ALAN LEMAY

INSTALLMENT SEVEN

THE STORY SO FAR: Karen Waterson, convinced by her lawyer, John Colt, that she has a claim to the island estate of her grandfather, Garrett Waterson, has come to Honolulu to attempt getting the property. In an effort to find out something about the Wayne family, now in control of Alakoa, the island, she accepts a date to go sailing with Richard Wayne or Tonga Dick as he is known throughout the South Pacific. Against her wishes he takes her to Alakoa and there they find that James Wayne, Dick's uncle and manager of the property, is very ill. Dick attempts to work out a compromise settlement with Karen but she refuses. The first night of their visit James Wayne is found dead. Next day Karen and Dick start back for Honolulu. On the way Dick attempts to explain to Karen the Wayne's interest in the island.

Now continue with the story.

Karen's next words were faintly contemptuous. "If you think that your brothers are capable of standing against such a man as John Colt—"

He shrugged impatiently. "Karen," he said, "I am the one that you are against now. Don't you know that?"

Karen faltered and her eyes dropped. But she said, "Yes; yes, of course. I suppose it always did have to come to that, in the end, didn't it?"

Suddenly Dick reached across the table and caught both her hands. "I don't want to go to war with you," he said. "I don't think you want to go to war with me. Do you?"

"It doesn't have to be war," Dick said. His voice had neither pride nor distance. "It can be anything you want to make it."

Suddenly he came to his feet, stepped around the little table; and though she sprang up he caught her in his arms. Her face pressed hard against his blue jacket, so that she smelled tobacco smoke, and salt spray. He spoke to her almost inaudibly through the sudden tumble of her hair.

"I don't want your island. I don't want anything on the face of the sea, except one thing. You know what that is. I want you."

Her arms went around him then, and she clung to him. "I don't want the island either, Dick."

"If it brought you into the Pacific, I guess Alakoa served its turn."

"You—you'll have to see John Colt," Karen said. "Somehow you have to fix it all with him."

She felt the breath go out of him. "Colt?" he repeated. "In God's name, why Colt?"

"Everything he has left has gone into backing me. He's the only reason I'm here."

His arms loosened, then, so that she swayed away from him; and he held her shoulders between his two hands.

"You feel so definitely tied to John Colt as that?"

"I have to stand by him, now—even now," Karen said. "I couldn't possibly do anything else."

She saw his eyes harden, and disengaged herself from his hands. "You hate John Colt so much?"

"My uncle would never have yielded one inch of Alakoa to John Colt," Tonga Dick said. He spoke slowly, but to Karen it must have seemed that his words carried an implacable finality. "Neither will I; and neither will my—brothers, while I live."

"I'm sorry," Karen said.

"You mean?"

"There's nothing more to be said."

"It's war, then?"

"There—there doesn't seem to be any other way."

"Karen—if there's anything I can say—"

She was in possession of herself again. "You might say," Karen told him, "you might say to the Chinese boy that I would like a cup of black coffee."

He turned away from her, shouting to the mess boy in a furious below that shook the lamps in their gimbals.

As he did so a great lift of the sea swung a porthole of the Holokai high above the water; and through the thick streaming glass Karen saw distant lights.

Honolulu was rising, coming to them across the black water.

Karen Waterson, deeply fatigued, did not talk to John Colt that night; and the brilliant but peculiarly soft sunlight of the Islands was flooding the lanai of her suite when she next awoke.

Looking at the sunlight on the clean rainbow water, it was hard to remember a lightless and uneasy sea with its long miles whispering under a black rain. Her memory of Tonga Dick Wayne, though, remained distinct, as sharply detailed as if he had been with her in the sunlight. She could almost see him standing there, tall and balanced, his sea cap slapped jauntily any old place on his head—grinning, of course, but with a glint of blue steel in his eyes narrowed against the brightness of the sea.

Later, eating breakfast on her own lanai, she was only half finished when John Colt tapped at the door, and was let in.

Colt paced morosely back and forth along the railing of the lanai while Karen sat down to finish her breakfast. "You look as if the sailing did you good," he complained.

"You've worried me half to death," he told her now. Unimpressed, Karen buttered a roll; and at this John Colt looked annoyed. "I should think," he said, "that you'd have enough consideration—"

"John," Karen said, "James Wayne is dead."

"Well—I know it. It's in the papers. And this is going to—"

"I," Karen said, "was on Alakoa when he died."

"You must have had a very lovely time."

"Interesting," Karen put in.

"Did you talk to James Wayne before he died?"

For a fraction of a moment Karen Waterson hesitated.

"No," she answered.

There was a long silence then, and Karen had a curious sense that time was rushing over them in long swells, as the green seas swept over the coral rocks.

"John," she said, "have you thought of compromise with the Waynes?"

"You talked with them?" he asked.

"No one but Tonga Dick. And it's impossible to learn anything from him until he's ready to have you know."

"Then—"

"I'm speaking from impressions—vague impressions," Karen admitted.

"I don't pretend to call it intuition—but you can call it what you want to. I think we ought to consider, very carefully, some sort of compromise with the Waynes."

If John Colt had ever feared Tonga Dick, he forgot it now. "Your case is sound and justifiable in every way—"

Island law being what it is, and the island precedents what they are. I wouldn't be here now, and you wouldn't be here, if I thought there was any loophole in your case."

"You don't want to think of compromise? Not any compromise at all?"

"The best possible thing for us is that the case be tried as it stands. The death of James Wayne, and the probate it implies, is a magnificent break—such a break as we could not have accomplished by our own efforts, nor hoped for. If ever anyone in the world had reason to play the cards as they lie, we have it now."

"I'm not so sure," Karen said.

"The whole estate will be tied up," Colt exclaimed. "Any attempt by the Waynes to conceal assets will be blown to hell now! Everything will go into probate, and we'll get the whole works, intact. And with James Wayne dead, those helpless nephews of his will drive their attorneys crazy. What a picture! They'll run in circles like sheep."

"One of them won't," Karen said.

"James Wayne was the only hard edge in the lot. He would have fought till he died; but he was the only one."

"There's one other," Karen said.

"Who?"

"Tonga Dick."

"That youngster? Rubbish!"

"You're going to find that Tonga Dick Wayne is the hardest one of them all," Karen prophesied; "and perhaps the most resourceful."

Colt shrugged. "You'll find he doesn't count at all."

What Karen said then was totally on impulse. She had not planned to say it, had not meant to say it; but somehow the words were unexpectedly drawn out of her lips by the tension that had come between them.

"John," Karen said, "suppose I married Dick Wayne?"

John Colt did not start, nor turn; he stood still, looking at the sea. But by his very immobility Karen knew that John Colt had met something which dropped him where he stood.

After a moment he swung his wide shoulders toward her. "You mean to say—"

John Colt started to ask "you mean to say—"

His question died away. He swung his shoulders again, and once more stood looking out at the sea.

Colt seemed composed again as he next spoke. "You're in love with this Tonga Dick?"

"I don't know," Karen said.

He stood looking at her, his hands deep in his pockets. His unaccustomed irresolution had a curious effect, strangely disturbing, as if it could mean nothing except that the whole basic foundation of the man was unexpectedly cracking up. John

Colt was like a mountain; he was like the sea. Perhaps it was a terrible thing that a slender girl, weighing not more than one hundred and twenty pounds, could break up John Colt.

Suddenly Karen knew the reason. This man had never made love to her, not by a word, not by so much as the pressure of a hand. But now—nothing could have told Karen more definitely than this moment told her that Colt would rather lose Alakoa than lose her. John Colt was in love with her, completely and utterly, without recourse and without doubt.

"What is it," John Colt said, "that this man has?"

Karen couldn't answer him.

"Compromise," John Colt said queerly. "How could there be any compromise? If you weren't in the right—if you did not rightfully possess all this island—do you think I would have fooled with you?"

"As far as I have anything to do with this," Colt said, "I'll never yield any Wayne one cent."

There was a finality in that; but instinctively Karen knew that it was not a finality that had anything to do with money. What had been a contest for an island had turned into a contest between two men for a girl. Neither one of them would be satisfied now with any settlement that would not be a complete shut-out for the other.

When she had comprehended that, Karen knew that she was in a trap. Perhaps already an unalterable obligation had committed her to something she had not foreseen.

CHAPTER VIII

Until now Karen Waterson had secretly looked forward to the first meeting of Tonga Dick Wayne and John Colt, as an event no sports-lover would wish to miss. Now, however, her mischievous spectator-interest was superseded by new elements. Not Alakoa, but Karen herself, had become the focus of disturbance; making her hope that she would be as far away as possible when the two should collide.

The inevitable meeting took place late that afternoon.

On the surface nothing could have seemed smoother or more casual. There was a tea dansant on the beach terrace of the hotel; Karen and John Colt sat at a table beside the dance floor. Neither of them saw Tonga Dick Wayne come strolling between the tables until he was standing there, beside Karen's chair.

Dick Wayne was wearing whites, which emphasized the depth of his tan; perhaps that was why he managed to look like the only true islander there in all that throng. He grinned down at them amiably from his considerable height.

"Hello, conspirators."

Karen said, "Hello, Dick." John Colt stood up automatically, and said nothing; there was no least change in his expression.

A miniature Filipino boy now came into evidence behind Dick Wayne; he was carrying a chair with which he must have followed Tonga Dick clear across the lanai through the crowd. Karen supposed that she would have to make the best of the thing, such as it was.

"Mr. Wayne, I'm not sure whether you've met Mr. Colt?"

"Not possibly the famous deep sea diver?" Dick asked.

"Much better known," Colt purred "as an inventive pastry cook."

"My mistake," Dick said.

Dick Wayne accepted a drink the Filipino boy handed him, and chuckled as he looked about him. "I see some Honolulu people here," he remarked. "Tomorrow it will be all over town that the Waynes' black sheep is very clubby with the enemy, and has probably sold out."

"Very amusing for you, I have no doubt," said John Colt.

"Yes," said Dick. "You look kind of sweet, Karen."

Colt made a movement in his chair as if he were about to rise.

"Don't go away," Dick said, not bothering to take his eyes from the dance floor. He sipped his drink reflectively, "I have news for you, Colt."

JOHN THE BAPTIST AND JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 3:1-6, 15-17, 21, 22.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thou art my beloved Son; in thee I am well pleased.—Luke 3:22.

"A reed shaken with the wind?" No. "A man clothed in soft raiment?" No. "A prophet?" Yea, I say unto you, and more than a prophet. For this is he, of whom it is written, Behold, I send my messenger before thy face. . . . Verily I say unto you, Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist." Such was the testimony of Jesus (Matt. 11:7-11) about the man who in our lesson of today bears his testimony concerning Jesus.

I. John: the Preacher of Repentance (vv. 1-3).

The times in which a man lives will often make or break him. If times are dark and difficult most men submit to the burden of the day without protest or effort. But not so with John. The period in which he lived is graphically brought before us as we consider the names of civil and religious leaders mentioned in verses 1 and 2. Tiberius Caesar, the emperor, was virtual dictator, "talented, ambitious, cruel, licentious, infamous, inhuman" (Van Doren). Pilate was the governor of Judea, who later condemned Jesus to the cross. Herod was a seducer and murderer. Annas and Caiaphas shared the infamy into which the priesthood had fallen.

God needed a man with a flaming message of judgment, and He had him ready out in the wilderness, far from decadent Rome and spiritually dead Jerusalem. Upon this man John came the message, a word from God—"Repent"—which stirred the whole countryside. But he had even a greater mission.

II. John—the Forerunner of Jesus (vv. 4-6).

He humbly identifies himself as the voice in the wilderness prophesied by Isaiah. His was the important duty of preparing the way for the coming of the Lord Jesus.

The picture is that of the preparation for the coming of an oriental monarch. When he "was about to make a journey, a servant was sent before him to prepare the highway. Valleys needed to be filled, hills lowered, crooked places made straight, rough ways made smooth. Thus, before men would be ready to receive Christ, moral obstacles must be removed, men must repent of their sins and turn from them" (Erdman).

Isaiah says that "all flesh shall see the salvation of God," something which God has made possible, but which we have not even yet fully carried out. The gospel is universal in its character—for all mankind. This prophetic word will, of course, have its complete fulfillment when the King comes to reign. Then "they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for they shall all know me, from the least of them to the greatest of them" (Jer. 31:34).

III. John—the Follower of Jesus (vv. 15-17).

The humility of the man, his recognition of true greatness in Christ, his willingness to efface self, is seen in the words of these verses and in such other passages as John 1:29-30, where he directed his disciples to Jesus, whom they followed, and John 3:28-30, where in response to the effort to make him jealous of Jesus because his (John's) disciples followed Him, John replied, "He must increase, but I must decrease." He was glad to be the friend of the Bridegroom who rejoiced when the bridegroom came (John 3:29). He declared himself unworthy to loose the latchet of Christ's shoe (Luke 3:16).

The Christian virtue of humility is evil spoken of by a world of force and hatred, but it is still precious in the sight of God, and the ornament par excellence of Christian character. "Be clothed with humility: for God resisteth the proud and giveth grace to the humble" (1 Pet. 5:5).

As he put himself in the background, John put Christ forward as the one whose baptism would not be a material element, water, indicating the inward change of repentance, but would be with Holy Ghost fire, cleansing and transforming life.

However, the Christ who comes as a Saviour to the repentant one, comes also as the flaming fire of judgment upon the impenitent. There is wheat and chaff in the world of men, and the fan of Christ will soon separate the wheat which goes into His eternal garner from the chaff which He will burn with unquenchable fire.

Our God is a God of unfathomable grace, but He is also a God of severest judgment upon those "that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ." Read the solemn words of II Thessalonians 1:7-9. It is an awful thing to reject the Saviour, and thus to make Him our Judge.

The January safety poster pictured above, now being distributed to schools throughout Illinois and Indiana by the Chicago Motor Club, urges children to "Teach Your Friends" to "Cross at Corners." Blue, black and white are the colors used.

This series of posters follows a plan of exaggerated proportions which makes children giants and streets and cars miniature. Comments indicate that both teachers and pupils like them better than any in previous years.

At The Roxy

It's a howling hilarious drama as that All-American boy turns the town upside down in "Henry Aldrich for President", starring the merth provoking performances of Jimmy Lydon, June Preisser and Martha O'Driscoll which will be featured at the Roxy at Lockport, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, plus "Maizie Was a Lady" with Ann Sothern and Lew Ayres.

This Friday and Saturday, the Roxy will feature an outstanding twin bill of "Down Mexico Way," with Gene Autry and Smiley Burnette, plus "Father Steps Out" with Frank Albertson and Lorna Gray.

Welcome at a Housewarming—Honey Twist Rolls
(See Recipes Below)

Housewarming Time

Soft, sweet, crusty rolls, a fruity coffee cake, a plate of cookies, tempting sandwiches in crescent, diamond, circle or heart shapes, coffee, tea or cider from which to choose your drink—these form the basis of the refreshments for a housewarming. The event isn't lavish, it's simple, sincere and warm with friendliness for you've gathered to greet your friends in their new home.

Whether you've planned the housewarming as a surprise to the family in their new home, or whether you're inviting friends to an "at home" in your own home, keep everything as simple as possible. If you have many coming, ask some earlier and others later so the house will never be too crowded. No entertainment need be planned for everyone will want to inspect the house or apartment and have a light snack before leaving perhaps.

Clever invitations can be sent out by using a miniature plan of the house, a rough drawing or silhouette of the house and writing the invitation inside or out as it best fits.

All refreshments can be placed on a table set simply with a plain cloth and attractive flowers. Teenage girls will enjoy helping at the table pouring coffee or tea and helping fill the trays of rolls and sandwiches as they're used.

Hot rolls with the smell of the oven still on them will spell a grand welcome, especially when your guests come in from frost-nipped outdoors:

*Sweet Bow Knot Rolls. (Makes 2½ dozen)

1 cup milk
¼ cup butter
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 cakes compressed yeast
¾ cup lukewarm water
2 eggs
4½ cups sifted flour (about)

Scald milk and pour over butter, sugar and salt. Crumble yeast into water to soften. Cool milk to lukewarm, add yeast, beaten eggs and 2 cups flour. Beat well. Add enough flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on a floured board and knead until smooth. Form into a ball and place in a greased bowl. Cover and let rise until double in bulk. When light, knead down and shape into long strands, 6 inches long, ½ inch in diameter. Tie these strands into a single looped knot. Place on greased baking sheet and let rise until doubled. Bake in a moderate (375-degree) oven, 15 to 20 minutes. Brush with powdered sugar icing and sprinkle with chopped nuts.

*Honey Twists. (Makes 2½ dozen)

Use the same ingredients as in Sweet Bow Knot Rolls. Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk, add butter, sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm and add enough flour to make a thick batter. Add yeast and eggs. Beat well and add more flour to make a soft dough. Place in a greased bowl and let rise until doubled. When light punch down and roll into small strands about 6 inches long, ½ inch in diameter. Coil into greased 2-inch muffin pans, beginning at the outer edge and covering the bottom. Brush with Honey Topping. Let rise until double in bulk and bake in a moderate oven 25 to 30 minutes.

Honey Topping.

¾ cup butter
¾ cup powdered sugar
1 egg white
2 tablespoons honey, warmed
Cream all ingredients together and brush over Twists before baking.

*Fruited Coffee Cake. (Makes 1 large ring)

1 cake yeast
½ cup lukewarm potato water
6 cups flour, sifted
1 cup lukewarm water
1 teaspoon lemon extract
1 cup shortening or butter
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¾ pound large raisins
¾ cup currants
¾ pound candied citron
¾ pound candied lemon peel
Softened yeast in potato water, add 1 cup flour and warm water. Let rise. Cut shortening into remaining flour, add remaining ingredients then combine with first mixture. Let rise until double. Shape into large, buttered ring or loaf and let rise until doubled in bulk. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven 1 hour. Frost with a powdered sugar icing and sprinkle with chopped or shredded nuts.

Here are some cookies that are as delightful as homespun. They're especially nice for housewarming because the recipe makes a large quantity and you won't be able to count consumption on them. The blending of fruits with spices makes this a popular cookie:

*Cape Elizabeth Cookies. (Makes 3½ dozen medium)

½ cup butter
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg
5 tablespoons milk
1½ cups flour
1 cup rolled oats
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon allspice
½ cup pineapple cut into shreds, drained
½ cup walnuts, chopped
½ cup raisins
3 tablespoons grated orange rind

Combine sugar and butter, add egg and milk, then dry ingredients. Last of all add the fruit and nuts. Drop by spoonfuls on greased cookie sheet. Bake in a moderate (375-degree) oven 8 minutes.

Here are some tempting sandwich combinations for the sandwich platter. Made in crescent, star, heart or triangle shapes they'll be one of the most popular numbers at the housewarming:

*Assorted Sandwiches.

Flaked tuna or salmon seasoned with mayonnaise, lemon juice, and butter.
Mashed sardines, lemon juice, chili sauce.
Mashed liverwurst with chili sauce.
Peanut butter and chopped, cooked bacon.
Cooked ham ground with sweet pickle, moistened with mayonnaise.
Cream cheese with orange marmalade or cranberry jelly.
Sliced American cheese, thinly sliced fried ham, mustard.
Cream cheese and honey.
Peanut butter, lemon juice and mashed banana.

LYNN SAYS:

Rolls in a variety of shapes are guaranteed to please the most fastidious family. Here's a list of favorite shapes to try out:

Knots: Twist and tie strip of dough into a knot.
Parker House: Roll dough ½ inch thick, cut into rounds with biscuit cutter, dip in melted butter and fold in half. Place rolls close together in pan.

Crescents: Cut dough into triangle shapes, having dough at least four inches at wide end. Spread with butter, roll beginning at one corner. Pull ends to resemble a crescent.

Butterhorns: Cut dough in edge shapes, brush with butter, roll towards point.

Butter Flakes: Roll dough ¼ inch thick, brush with butter, cut in 2-inch strips. Stack strips 4 or 5 high, cut into 2-inch pieces and place in greased muffin tins cut side down.

ALL FOR THE BEST

Apathy has flown the coop.
Unconcern has hit the floor;
Selfishness has looped the loop,
Dopiness is now no more;
Silent are the "gimme" boys,
All obstructors get the "bird";
Gone is all light-hearted poise—
REALISM is the word!

II.

Now it isn't mere routine.
When the dangers round us roll,
Just to gambol on the green
Waiting for a Gallup poll;
Nuttty rallies now are out,
Stilled are antis this and that;
On soap-boxes few now spout . . .
We're a nation AT THE BAT!

III.

Sleeping at the switch is not
Now the leading enterprise;
Mikes no longer get red hot
From the breath of wild-eyed guys;
Arguments are down the sink,
Discord's had a run-out pill;
And no little hink-dink
Tries to thwart a nation's will.

IV.

Now committees full of men
Who are anti-everything
Take the count of "eight . . . nine
TEN!"
(Though some paid officials cling);
Pussyfooting now is out,
Half-baked ranters stop their acts
All the country, there's no doubt,
Sees the truth, and faces FACTS!

V.

Hedgers crawl into a crack,
Compromisers slink away;
Ten per centers now fall back,
Trimmers haven't much to say;
Racketeering labor rats
(And a lot of bosses, too),
Cease their very costly spats
Under the red, white and blue.

VI.

Critics crawl into their shells,
Know-it-alls now take the skids;
Experts have had dizzy spells,
Grown-ups do not act like kids;
Sunk are armchair leaders all,
Hoey has been booted far;
Now at last we stand or fall
SEEING THINGS JUST AS THEY ARE!

ON THE SPOT

("In case of an air raid alarm:
Lie down immediately on your stomach . . .")
About his paunch Dad was always defiant,
But now he wishes he was much more pliant!

—Debchi.

New York will attempt to jail anybody refusing to get off the streets during an air raid warning. If this is really tried we predict that all traffic will be tied up by long lines of Black Marias taking folks to the hoosegow.

THE CALL

Remember the Arizona!—
The Cassin, Downes and Shaw!
For every one the Japs got
Let's make it three or four!

Remember the Oklahoma—
And good old Utah, too!
Each hit makes more efficient
Old Yankee Doodle-do.

FLEET SHAKE-UP

(With apologies to F.P.A.)
Kimmel and Martin and Short—they are out!

Heeding the umpire's cry;
Out, one-two-three as the scorekeepers shout
"Tinker to Jacobs to Pye!"

PEGGED

You must pay the piper
Is what I was taught,
And I've always found it
A distressing thought.
But now, with costs soaring,
I think it is nice
To know that the piper
Cannot raise his price!

—Anne Linn.

If the rubber shortage gets serious what will this country do for chicken sandwiches. And clam chowder? . . .

AIN'T IT SO

Of all poor friends on whom to call
The "friendly neutral" tops 'em all.

Elmer Twitchell says that nothing unnerves him as much as Mayor LaGuardia urging everybody to let nothing disturb them.

The Wright brothers 38 years ago at Kitty Hawk first proved a heavier than air machine could fly and it is this department's guess that if the brothers could have foreseen the future, they would have scrapped the thing before the try-out.

"Golf and Tennis Balls to Be Rationed."—Headline.
How can we make these all-out drives without them?

Bathing suits and rubber bathing caps are to be rationed, too, beginning next month. This was the first news to arouse Ima Dodo to a realization the country is really at war.

Yale has pledged its support of the country in the war. But a lot of football fans will put more faith in Harvard and Princeton.

Planning Ahead

He who every morning plans the transactions of the day, and follows out that plan, carries a thread that will guide him through the labyrinth of the most busy life. The orderly arrangement of his time is like a ray of light which darts itself through all his occupations.

MOVIE STAR JOINS U.S. NAVY

Ensign Wayne Morris Seeks Wings

Wayne Morris, recent star of "I Wanted Wings," became a member of Uncle Sam's Navy in May, 1941, when he was appointed to the rank of Ensign.
When asked what he thought of the United States Navy, Morris said, "I think every man who is considering joining a military service should look into the 'chance of a lifetime' which the Navy and Naval Reserve offer to get into the big-pay field of the future—aviation. In the Navy you can attend the finest flight training schools in the world, and receive instruction from Navy pilots who introduced dive bombing, aircraft carriers and catapult take-offs to the rest of the world. Also, there are opportunities in Naval Aviation for men who don't want to fly. They can be trained as aviation machinists, metalsmiths, photographers, observers, or they can receive instruction in many other trades. It's a great life in the Navy."
Ensign Wayne Morris is pictured here in his line of duty as a member of the Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board at the Long Beach Naval Reserve Air Base.
